COMING SEPT. 2023

A New Pilot Professional Development Program and Ideas Incubator

Spark Systemic Change | Reimagine Employment

WWW.TRANSFORMINGEMPLOYMENTNARRATIVES.CA

We are excited to announce the launch of our newest program, Transforming Employment Narratives: Inspired by Refugee Claimants and Employers. Transforming Employment Narratives, or TEN, is Kinbrace's first step at addressing the barriers that prevent refugee claimants from achieving financial mobility.

Through this pilot professional development and ideas incubator program, refugee claimants, employers, HR professionals and settlement workers will come together in-person to hear and learn from one another, examine the systemic issue of refugee claimant underemployment, and collectively reimagine a better employment journey for both refugee claimants and employers.

We are thrilled to be working with Camille Dumond and Jorge Salazar on this program as our Facilitators. They have been working together since 2017 on projects (including those at Inner Activist and the Refugee Livelihood Lab at SFU Radius) that bring people together to build the courage and care needed to face inequity head on and shift the conditions keeping problems in place.

Through mutual transformation, we will shift perceptions and spark systems change that leads to refugee claimants and employers flourishing together.

We encourage refugee claimants, employers, HR professionals, and settlement workers in Metro Vancouver Area to learn more and apply for the program at <https://transformingemploymentnarratives.ca>. Spots are limited and selection is based on the program's capacity and participants' diversity as we are focused on creating an environment where relationships can be cultivated so that mutual transformation can happen.

If you have any questions or wonderings, you can email Mohammed Zaqout, Project Coordinator, at mohammed@kinbrace.ca.
